

Falper | Minimum

The expressive force of pure volumes and the importance of proportions and empty spaces are the key points of the new Minimum collection for the bathroom, designed by Victor Vasilev for Falper

Falper Minimum by Victor Vasilev

Inspired by the art of Donald Judd, the American artist always associated with Minimalism, Victor Vasilev has created a versatile, modular system for Falper Minimum, offering personalization and containing wall-mounted washstands, self-supporting shelves and cabinets, available in different sizes and compositions.

"The collection begins with the analysis of the dimensioning of the functional elements, but it also pays close attention to the compositions, which have to bring out the presence of these objects in the space," the designer explains.

Marble, wood, Cementobasic® and Cristalplant Biobased Active are the materials carefully selected to enhance the collection's pure forms, while offering maximum personalization. Minimum embraces the Living Bathroom philosophy, which calls for a fluid space like an imaginary extension of the living area, where functional and aesthetic quality meet.
